

Unison Advisors LLC is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission as an investment adviser. Brokerage and investment advisory services and fees differ, and it is important for you to understand the differences. Free and simple tools are available to research firms and financial professionals at investor.gov/CRS, which also provides educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers and investing.

What investment services and advice can you provide me?

We offer investment advisory services to retail investors, which principally include discretionary investment management. Our discretionary authority to buy, sell and otherwise transact in securities in your account(s) is granted in our advisory agreement is only limited by your reasonable restrictions or our mutual ability to terminate the advisory agreement. Our advice is not limited to certain types of investments. We do not offer proprietary products. We do not have a minimum account size or investment amount to retain or maintain our advisory services.

We regularly monitor your account(s), with reviews typically occurring at least quarterly. It is important that you keep us apprised of your financial situation so we can conduct more frequent reviews if necessary.

More detailed information about our services may be found in Items 4 and 7 of our Form ADV Part 2A brochure.

“Given my financial situation, should I choose an investment advisory service? Why or why not?”

“How will you choose investments to recommend to me?”

“What is your relevant experience, including your licenses, education and other qualifications? What do these qualifications mean?”

What fees will I pay?

Retail investors will incur fees based on a percentage of their assets under our management, which are generally 0.75% to 0.55% per annum, depending on the value of the investments in your account(s). Fees are paid quarterly in arrears. In addition, retail investors will incur product expenses such as internal expense ratios, and the broker-dealer that holds your assets may charge you a transaction fee when we buy or sell an investment for you.

When we charge an asset-based fee, the more assets there are in your account(s), the more you will pay in fees, and we may therefore have an incentive to encourage you to increase the assets in your account(s).

You will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying.

More detailed information about our fees and costs may be found in Item 5 of our Form ADV Part 2A brochure.

“Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments. If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?”

What are your legal obligations to me when acting as my investment adviser? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?

When we act as your investment adviser, we have to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they can affect the investment advice we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means.

The custodian we recommend provides us various products and services that are intended to directly benefit you, us or both of us. These products and services are principally practice management software, duplicate client confirmations, access to an institutional trading desk, access to block trading capabilities and access to an electronic communication network for order entry and account information. To the extent a custodian provides us products or services that don't directly benefit you, this creates an incentive to recommend that custodian. To learn how we address this incentive, please refer to Items 12 and 14 of our ADV Part 2A brochure.
